++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Turning warmer and drier after Friday.

Today:
Western parts cloudy with some rain or drizzle at times. Drier further east and also across northern Scotland with some bright spells, and feeling warm.

Tonight:
Mostly cloudy. Patchy rain and drizzle in the west tending to mostly die out by dawn. Some clear spells in the east and north with a few fog patches forming.

Saturday:
A mostly cloudy start with some light rain or drizzle in the west at first. A few showers developing, else most parts dry elsewhere with some warm afternoon sunshine.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Mostly fine and dry with warm or very warm sunshine. Some rain possible in the far northwest of Scotland from Monday. Cooler and cloudier at times down some eastern coasts.
